EZ Fitness: Three User Personas

These three personas represent different types of people who could use EZ Fitness. Each has different goals and challenges that the app is designed to help with.

1. Alex — The Beginner

Age: 16 · High school student

Goals

- Learn how to exercise correctly.
- Build a consistent workout routine.
- Become more confident about fitness.

Challenges

- Feels nervous about going to the gym.
- Does not know which exercises to do.
- Has trouble staying motivated.

How EZ Fitness would help

EZ Fitness would give Alex simple home workouts, beginner-friendly exercise guides, and reminders to help him stay consistent.

“I want to start working out, but I don't really know what I'm doing yet.”

2. Maya — The Busy Student

Age: 20 · College student with a part-time job

Goals

- Stay active while balancing school and work.
- Find workouts that fit her schedule.
- Build healthier daily habits.

Challenges

- Has limited free time.
- Sometimes forgets to exercise.
- Finds it difficult to follow a weekly routine.

How EZ Fitness would help

EZ Fitness would create short, personalized workouts based on Maya's available time and send reminders to help her follow her schedule.

“I want to stay active, but I don't always have time for a long workout.”

3. Daniel — The At-Home Exerciser

Age: 38 · Full-time office worker

Goals

- Become more active during the week.
- Exercise comfortably at home.
- Improve his fitness and energy levels.

Challenges

- Feels uncomfortable exercising in a crowded gym.
- Does not have much workout equipment.
- Struggles to stay consistent after work.

How EZ Fitness would help

EZ Fitness would recommend workouts that require little or no equipment, offer easy-to-follow instructions, and track Daniel's weekly activity.

“I'd rather work out at home, but I need a plan that helps me keep going.”

What these personas teach us

- Alex needs guidance and confidence to get started.
- Maya needs flexible workouts that fit a busy schedule.
- Daniel needs convenient home workouts and help staying consistent.

Conclusion: These personas show why EZ Fitness should offer personalized workouts, simple instructions, flexible schedules, and progress tracking. The app should welcome people of different ages and experience levels so everyone can work toward their own fitness goals.
